

Mrs Tucker's Weekly Update

Hello my lovely Hedgehogs.

How are you? I know the weather has changed a little but I hope you are still able to appreciate the rain too, and why we might need it! I have seen all the lovely flowers in bloom on my daily walks.

We have been busy in the garden over half term, Mr Tucker and I wanted to change how we use the garden so we worked hard to lay a patio. I was nervous about getting it wrong, but enjoyed the challenge and learned that I can learn new skills too.

We did have a celebration in half-term too, which included some cake and singing, and a few gifts too. Yes, I have had my big birthday...I am 50 now!!

One of the gifts that I got was to help to keep attracting the birds. My son, Michael, gifted me a birdbath. And the day it came into the garden, this brave wee bird came to visit and sit a while in the cool shade. He is a fledgling of an African-pied Wagtail.

Continue to stay well, my Hedgehogs, thank you for sending me your updates, it is always great to hear your news or see work you have done. Send these to Stay safe and be kind, always.
